TWELVE PAGES.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

Much of our Soto. Voe column this morning is given up to charitable uses—the benefit of those who advertise in the Tribune.

THE EXAMINATION of Felt and Abbott was yesterday continued until Monday.

WHEELER & SAWYER, the cattle men, have gone east to purchase three car loads of blooded bulls.

A YOUNG man named Corbett is freely advertised by Mr. Wickel in our special columns this morning.

HENRY DIXON has added a vestibule and other improvements to his residence in the Seventh ward.

MORRIS LIVINGSTON wore a broad smile yesterday, the occasion being the advent of a heir into his family.

DEWIGHT S. DOW's commercial night school can receive no more students after Monday evening, City Hall.

A LARGE number of delinquents have already taken heed and settled their taxes, thereby saving extra costs.

McCONICK & Co. received yesterday one car Hanauer bullion, $2,450; one car Queen of the Hills ore, $1,300. Total, $3,750.

BUSINESS in Ogden has improved somewhat during the past week, although there has been no extraordinary change.

BROWNING Bros., of Ogden, have enlarged their store and built new work-shops, and now have very convenient premises.

JOHN PORTER was taken in by the police after 2 o'clock yesterday morning, "full as a tick," and yesterday was fined $5 for his gauding.

THE FUNERAL services over the remains of John Taylor will be held at the Ninth ward meeting-house, commencing at 10.30 o'clock this morning.

AN EXCELLENT portrait of Dr. J. M. Benedict, in crayon, the work of Mr. John Hefen, has adorned the window of Calder's music palace window for some days.

A MAGNIFICENT Russia leather dictionary—Webster's finest unabridged, has just arrived at Dwyer's, and has been placed on the list of Herald premiums.

A SELECT tea party, consisting of ladies only, was given at Mayor Sharp's residence, and was presided over by charmingly by Miss Lizzie, last evening.

E. E. RICH, of the People's Forwarding Co., of this city, shipped to Colorado yesterday, via the D. & R. G., three cars of cattle and seven cars of salt.

WELLS, FARGO & Co., yesterday received three cars Horn Silver bullion, $7,500; twenty-two bars Ontario, $14,122.30; one car Minnie Moore, $1,302. Total, $22,924.30.

DON'T FORGET the operative entertainment to be given in the Twentieth ward schoolhouse on Tuesday evening next. Trial by Jury will be reproduced in excellent style, and is said to be well localized.

TO-MORROW'S SUN will, in all human probability, not glide to rest without seeing some saloon keepers come to grief; $900 each from thirty-eight keepers will absorb the floating capital of the town.

C. O. WHITTEMORE, the attorney employed to bring suits against delinquent tax payers, has received from a Detroit firm an illustrated catalogue of townships and monuments. It conveys a solemn warning.

TO-MORROW is set for the opening of the holiday goods at Dwyer's book store, and a most magnificent stock will be placed on exhibition, comprising a most elegant line of fancy articles and toys. The public are invited.

ALL THOSE holding tickets for the grand ball, to be given in the Salt Lake Theatre, December 15th, by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, can secure half rate fares from any point on the Utah Central railroad.

THE SECOND of the series of lectures under the auspices of the Caledonian Society will be delivered in the Social Hall, on Tuesday evening next, commencing at 7.30 o'clock, by G. L. Savage, Esq. His subject is "The Sun." The society will be pleased to welcome its friends.

THE BOY Green, arrested for stealing a wheelbarrow, the other day, implicated another boy, named Marshall, and when both were arraigned before Alderman Speirs yesterday, they pleaded guilty. Sentence was suspended during good behavior.

THE RECORD of coming amusements is given in full in our Dramatic and Lyric columns to-day. The ladies of St. Mark's Guild at the Theatre, and Mr. Stephens' concert at the Social Hall monopolize the town to-morrow night. Leavitt's varieties open at the Theatre Tuesday evening.

NEARLY a serious accident occurred to Mr. Robert Campbell, yesterday, in front of the Co-op. While crossing the street there a team, driven by a careless driver, narrowly escaped knocking him down and running over him. As it was, the wagon tongue grazed his arm and created some excitement.

WATERMASTER SMITH, of the Nineteenth ward, has done a good piece of work near the Utah Central railway track in turning the course of a stream of water which was flooding the street in that vicinity. Teamsters having occasion to travel that way will feel appreciative of the service rendered.

AT TEN O'CLOCK the date for the presentation of Ten Nights in a Barroom at the Twelfth Ward Assembly Room has been fixed. The 20th inst. is the day when this favorite drama and the Deseret Hospital, for whose benefit it is to be given, will draw out a large attendance.

THE ARGUMENT and ore output for the past week consisted of:

57 cars bullion ..... 1,387,615 lb

53 cars ore ..... 1,474,070 lb

3 cars white lead ..... 65,000 lb

113 cars ..... 2,926,685 lb

XXXX FLOUR, Quality guaranteed; price, $1.20 per hundred.

GOSSAMER EVIDENCE.

Hansen Bound Over on a Flimsy Case.

TERRIFIC LYING SOMEWHERE.

Is Hansen a Husband or a Casual Acquaintance?—Is Hansen or Andersen the Perjuror?

We left off our report yesterday at the point after the examination of Andersen, the only witness against Ole L. Hansen, and after a subpoena had been issued for Mrs. Iyven: we would not pursue the investigation further, but for the purpose of showing from the evidence adduced upon how slight a pretense a man can be held (which means too often deprived of his liberty) and that the "probable" cause was "probable" in the strictest interpretation of the word. The testimony of Andersen, as published yesterday morning is all, so far, that the probability has had for a foundation, and if we may be allowed to judge the subsequent developments made it appear exceedingly thin. However, the readers of THE HERALD can draw their own conclusions.

Mrs. Iyven was the first witness called about 10.30 yesterday morning, and after answering four or five interrogatories put by the Prosecuting Attorney, was sworn. She said her name was Elise; age 24; lived in the Fifth Ward; had known Ole L. Hansen about fifteen or eighteen months; and that she had never been at his house. When these several questions had been propounded and answered, she showed signs of nervousness and was given a short space of time, in which to recover herself. In a few minutes Mr. Dickson proceeded:

"Do you know anything of the alleged marriage of Hansen with your mother?"

"No; if I said I did, it was only in fun."

"Why did you speak of it?"

"Because he appeared to be paying considerable attention, and was very kind to my mother."

"You told some one that you thought you would soon have a stepfather, did you not?"

"I am not sure that I did. I might have said, 'Perhaps you'll have a stepfather before long, in a joking manner.'"

"Didn't you tell Niels Valentine, your brother, that Hansen had married your mother in February?"

"No."

Some questions relating to what she saw pass between the defendant and her mother, followed, but went to show nothing more than that what he did for her was nothing more than acts of kindness such as one friend would do to another.

"Did you ever say anything to your mother about being married to Hansen?"

"No never," with a smile; "I never said nor heard her say anything about it."

Hansen, she said, had asked her not to feel anywise bad about what he had been doing for her mother, because there was nothing between him and her.

"How came he to say this? Had you ever said anything to him about it?"

"I might have done so; but I can't remember."

Mr. Dickson gave her up, and the Commissioner asked Hansen if he wished to question her, but he replied in the negative.

The linguistic services of Deputy Marshal Sprague were called into requisition with the next witness, Mrs. Valentine, she being unable to converse in English, and her examination was proceeded with, through the medium of the now-celebrated Danish interpreter.

"Was you living in Hansen's house in May or June last?" "No."

"Don't you remember whether it was in the latter part of May or the first of June?" "No."

"Did you ever see Anderson there?" "Yes, he came as a casual visitor."

"Did Anderson live there?" "Yes, for two or three weeks, in either May or June."

"Did Hansen ever stop all night at your house?" "Yes; but he stayed in his wagon box; not in my room."

"Where did he sleep?" "After he went out, I didn't know whether he slept in the stable or his wagon box."

"What did he stop all night for?" "To protect me."

"Did he sleep in his wagon box in order to protect you?" "Yes, I could call him. He came to befriend me."

"If he wanted to protect you, why didn't he come every night?" "There were times when I could call upon the neighbors, Rochester and others."

"How far is it from your place to Hansen's?" "About three miles."

"Did Hansen ever stop in the room with you at night?" "No, with decided and dignified emphasis."

"Was he ever in your bed in May or June?" "No; with injured air, and in small capitals."

"Did he ever take breakfast with you?" "Two times."

"Supper?" "No; only a cup of tea."

"Did you request him to come to protect you?" "No, not particularly; he and his wife passed my place frequently, and in conversation I told him of the circumstances of Anderson's treatment of me."

"Was Hansen ever in bed anywhere, at any time with you?" "No, no, no; in an almost angry tone."

The "That's all" of the Prosecuting Attorney indicated that he had obtained from her all he could, and when Hansen was asked if he wanted to ply her with any counterclaims, he said no, and on being informed that he could make a statement or take the stand and testify in his own behalf, he began a disjointed speech, to the effect that he was not posted in law matters, but thought that it had been shown that he was guilty of no crime; that he had done no harm to any one, so far as he knew.

He finally said that he desired to testify, and Mr. Dickson began. His full name is Ole Lars Hansen; he first knew Mrs. Valentine about eighteen months ago; happened to pass where she lived; did not then know whether she was Danish or English; when she informed him she was a Dane, a friendly intimacy sprang up, and many a chat followed; she afterwards told him that she was a poor, widow woman, that she was some distance from the city, and that he should take to town and sell; he did so; then she sent him after and sometimes accompanied him and his wife; subsequent conversations revealed the fact that her uncle was his school teacher in Denmark; he learned from her that her husband owned the property and permitted Andersen to live on it; but Andersen told him he had bought the property. He related a dissatisfaction which had occurred between Andersen and Mrs. Valentine, and she asked him to come around at night to protect her, as she was afraid of him; he often visited her and talked on religious and other matters, and when late enough went out to his wagon, where he could see to his mules; Andersen abused her so that she implored him to take her things up town, which he did; she asked him to visit her as a friend as she had more confidence in him than in anybody else; she afterwards went to his house to live, where she did the housework, but got no pay for her labor; she sometimes went once, twice or three times a week to his residence.

At the conclusion of the foregoing Mr. Dickson began a long examination of the defendant regarding his visit to the Endowment House, and the substance of what he elicited was about this: Mrs. Valentine wanted to go through the house, and, at the solicitation of her son, Hansen had come up to assist her in going through, as an interpreter; he had obtained a "recommend" from his bishop, presented it to Stake President Cannon and had visited President Taylor before going. A rigid cross-examination ensued, during which nothing could be obtained further than that he went as an interpreter, but his services as such were not required, as Mrs. Valentine got through without his aid, and he did not see her at all in the Endowment House.

Toward the close, Mr. Dickson put the following direct questions: "Did you ever sleep in her bed?" "No, sir," decidedly.

"Do you remember Mrs. Valentine coming out of her room and talking to Andersen?" "No, sir."

"Weren't you married to her at the time you went through the Endowment House?" "No, sir."

"Did you ever go through a marriage ceremony with her?" "No, sir."

This concluded Hansen's examination, and as there were some other witnesses to be supplanted, an adjournment was taken until 1.30 o'clock.

At the time for reassembling, it was discovered, by their presence, that Angus M. Cannon and Edward Schoenfeld were those for whose subpoenas had been issued. The first name was questioned as to the "recommend" which Hansen had stated he gave to him in order to obtain permission to enter the Endowment House; but his recollection did not justify his stating positively that he ever handled such a document; the "recommend" was a paper for persons to go to the church, but to attest their good standing in the church, but the one in question he could not remember having seen so many had passed through his hands.

EDWARD SCHOENFELD's testimony was to the effect that he had given him a recommendation—a general one—but not one specially stating that it was for the purpose of admitting Hansen to the Endowment House. "As an interpreter for Mrs. Valentine," he did not recollect of mention being made of the request for a recommend to go to enter, but in the House. "It might have been, but if it had, it had slipped his memory. It was not among his duties to go to the house, but he was required of him was a certificate that the applicant was in good standing in the church."

Mr. Dickson next inquired of Hansen if he had a family record, or if he had ever entered the name of Mrs. Valentine in any book, Bible or anything else, to which the accused replied in a very significant manner in the negative.

Another link in the chain of evidence was still missing, which Deputy Greenman was absent in search of, and as it was thought it would be turned up at 3 o'clock, the Commissioner, at 2 o'clock, decided to wait till then, and adjourned accordingly.

At 3 o'clock all hands but the missing link were present, when the prosecuting attorney whispered to the Commissioner that he would rest, that he had no further testimony, whereupon Mr. Dickson asked that Hansen be held for unlawful cohabitation, to answer to the Grand Jury.

In reply to the inquiry if he had any remarks to make, Hansen stated that he could not see why he should be held; he couldn't understand it at all; he was confident he had a clear case.

Mr. McKay informed the defendant that, in his opinion, there was probable cause for holding him, and would fix the bail at $1,500, with two good sureties, and the whole matter was referred to Ludwig Hansen, who was required to furnish, besides their own recognition, sufficient security for their appearance, and their sureties were fixed at $250 each.

For the Holidays.

The falling snow last evening made every one feel into his pockets to see how the expenses of the approaching Christmas and New Year holidays were to be met. When we were passing the Jewelry Store of E. J. Swane & Co., the pretty window and neat looking store magnetized us and we stepped in. We were convinced before we left that there is no better place in Salt Lake City to expend holiday money than this store. There are gold and silver watches, diamonds, diamond face pins, ear rings, charms, necklaces, breast pins, watch chains, guards, finger rings, scarf pins, Sterling silver ware and silver-plated ware, all placed at so low a margin that it seems like exchanging coin for manufactured gold and silver. The reputation of this firm for good goods and small margin gives every one a feeling of confidence when purchasing there that they are getting the full value for money expended. Go and look at their magnificent stock.

Dwyer's Opening.

Look out for Dwyer's Grand Opening of Holiday Goods, Monday, December 8th. Goods all new and fresh. Children's Books in endless variety, and cheapest in the city. Cheapest Books in the market. Cheapest Albums and Bibles. Cheapest Dolls ever brought to Utah. Largest and best selection of Children's Books, Games, Toys, etc., etc. Call and see the goods and prices at Dwyer's, Monday, December 8th. Low prices.

EDUCATIONAL.

The Teachers' Meeting held Yesterday in the Fourteenth Ward Assembly Rooms.

Pursuant to adjournment, the Salt Lake County Teachers' Association met in the Fourteenth Ward Assembly Rooms, Saturday, December 6th, 1884, Chas. F. Wilcox presiding.

After the usual opening exercises, Mr. John Morgan, on the subject of "Our Association," stated that in his mind the real object of our meeting together was to ascertain the best results to be obtained in the schoolroom. The association was reorganized about a year ago, and we could only consider ourselves as children in a school, and must learn, as they do, by experience. Feeling that a few words would be of benefit to the association, he then read some interesting items from the School Journal. After which he said all should be workers, and alive to the duties they were called upon to perform.

Mr. C. C. Crapo read an excellent article on education, "Principles which Underlie School Management," a well chosen subject.

Miss Edwards, on "How to Maintain Order in the School Room," gave some practical ideas which will be of great benefit to all wide awake teachers.

"Chart Class Recitation," by Miss Bowman was well treated.

"The Growth of the Mind," general discussion, was opened by Mr. M. Stewart, followed by several of our members of the association. As it was nearing the hour for closing, it was moved to postpone the discussion for another meeting. Carried.

After miscellaneous business, the association was favored with a song by Mr. R. S. Horne.

Lost Horse and Man.

Mr. John Wickel, yesterday afternoon appeared at Marshal Phillips' office and stated that, on Friday, about 1.30 o'clock, he hired out a horse, saddle and bridle to a young man named Thomas Corbett, the borrower saying he would return it in a couple of hours, but neither horse nor man had been seen since.

The animal was a bright bay, high-hipped, branded 25 on left shoulder, heavy tail. It was surmised that probably the young fellow had met with an accident which delayed his return, as nothing connected with his previous character would indicate that he had sloped with the outfit. The disappearance has caused some anxiety in the family of the young man.

Organizing Already.

The following is the matter of a dodger extensively circulated yesterday: "Cattle and horse men will meet at Farmington, Davis County, at 7 o'clock p.m., Wednesday, December 10th, for the purpose of organizing a cattle and horse breeding association. All interested are invited. Stock men will please invite all other stock men. Speakers from Salt Lake will be present." Mr. H. J. Faust is one of the promoters, and will doubtless give to those who meet some information which they may profit by.

Third District Court.

The case of Tennant vs. Ayrton occupied the attention of Judge Kane, counsel and jury, all day on Saturday. Late in the afternoon, Mr. Arthur Brown, counsel for defendant, moved for a non-suit, which was argued at some length, when the Chief Justice overruled it. Exception thereto was noted, and the taking of further testimony was proceeded with; and at the time court adjourned the defendant was on the stand.

The case of W. S. Clays vs. W. S. McCormick was dismissed.

Court adjourned till Monday.

Leo Hollander.

This well-known gentleman, who was once the proprietor of one of the most thriving business institutions in this city, returned to Salt Lake last evening, having made his eastern purchases for the opening of his jewelry business in Auerbach's new store. Mr. Hollander after an absence of a number of years has decided to resume business here, and has selected the eligible stand next to McCormick's bank, where he purposes opening out for the holidays with a complete stock. His old acquaintances will welcome him back.

Democratic Club Meeting.

A meeting of the Democratic Club of Utah will be held in the hall over Calder's Music Store next Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. A full attendance is requested of all interested, and particularly those desirous of uniting with the organization.

By order of the Executive Committee, J. M. YOUNG, Sec.

Forward the Movement.

The Blue Ribbon Temperance Association will hold their regular weekly meeting at the Methodist Episcopal Church to-morrow evening. All persons who feel interested in the work are respectfully invited to attend. Service to commence at 7.30, sharp.

THE WEEK IN MINING CIRCLES.

The Week's Business—Money—Interest—Decisions—Ore and Bullion—The Eureka and Beck.

The week has been distinguished by no transactions worthy of record, and trade in mercantile circles still continues to be dull; with the coming week however the holiday trade is expected to inaugurate itself, and merchants will in all probability do some of the smiles they laid away last year.

A reporter of THE HERALD learned from the Deseret National Bank yesterday that the money market was somewhat close, but that approved securities could still exercise their magic over vault doors.

Bishop Sharp's visit to New York is semi-officially announced to be connected with the approaching Utah Central dividend.

Several orders were sent from here to sell Horn Silver at a certain figure, but the limit was not reached.

The report that any Ogden Electric stock had changed hands is officially denied.

Two car loads of Utah lucerne seed were shipped during the past week to California, a somewhat phenomenal circumstance. The price per pound was 9½ cents, and the total weight of the carloads was 40,000 pounds. Mr. T. C. Armstrong sent one carload from here, the other went from Provo.

In the Pacific States and Territories, according to Bradstreet's, there were sixteen failures for the week ending Saturday, November 29th, against 22 for the week previous; corresponding weeks (the last in November) for previous years show the following failures: in 1883—26; in 1882—13; in 1881—12; the total failures throughout the country for the week were 237, against 232 in 1883, 136 in 1882 and 158 in 1881.

THE HERALD's mining column is regularly quoted from by the San Francisco Chronicle and the New York Mining and Engineering Journal.

The Recent Legal Decisions recorded in Bradstreet's this week will be of special interest to the business community of Utah; we quote the following:

SALE OF INTOXICATING LIQUORS.—The furnishing of spirituous liquors by a club to its members by the glass is not "selling" within the terms of a statute forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquors, according to the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Pomphrey.

PROMISSORY NOTE—ALTERATION.—If a promissory note be altered by substituting another payee for the original payee with the knowledge and consent of one of the makers but without the knowledge or consent of the other maker, such alteration releases from all liability the maker not consenting, according to the decision of the Supreme Court of Kansas in the case of Horn et al. vs. The Newton City Bank.

Ore and Bullion.

The receipts of ore and bullion in this city for the week ending Saturday, December 6th, amounted to $154,227.16, against $149,216.19 for the week previous. The receipts were reported as follows:

By Wells, Fargo & Co.:

	Value.
23 Cars Horn Silver	$65,500.00
51 Bars Ontario	34,394.16
3 Bars Vienna M. Co.	5,250.00
7 Cars Minnie Moore ore	8,977.00
Total	$114,121.16

By McCormick & Co.:

	Value.
9 Cars Hanauer	$29,900.00
4 Lots Crescent ore	7,100.00
1 Car Mayflower ore	1,000.00
3 Cars Stormont silver	4,250.00
2 Cars Queen of the Hills ore	2,750.00
1 Car Nevada ore	3,500.00
Total	$40,100.00

Total receipts for the week: $154,227.16

The Tintic Troubles.

Mr. J. Q. Peckard, of the Eureka Hill, and Mr. John Beck, of the Bull N., whose respective properties have recently been arguing on the smoke and shot gun principle, were both in the city yesterday, but neither could be found by a HERALD reporter. From Messrs. Bennett & Harkness, attorneys for the Eureka, however, we learned that the arguments on the injunctions will be heard by Judge Emerson on the 14th inst., at Ogden. The temporary restraining order has left the ground in dispute clear of combatants on either side, but shipping from both properties has not been interrupted in the least degree. The maps of the ground in conflict are being made and a strong fight will take place when the case comes up.

The Frisco.

Mr. W. S. Godbe informed a HERALD reporter yesterday that the sale which has been spoken of for some time past may now be practically regarded as "off." The decline in the price of lead has given this property, like most others in Utah, a black eye, and not much in the way of shipments need be expected until lead goes back somewhere near a living price.
